2nd Semester Course offered at
Obihiro University of Agriculture and Veterinary Medicine

English V: Communication (Presentations and Public Speaking)

Description

The course will cover the principles of public speaking and students will have to do several types of public speaking during the course. There will be five presentations with different themes given in the course and seven "show & tell" speaking activities. The "show and tell" activities and presentations will be peer reviewed based on a rubric provided by the instructor.

Goals

Public speaking and making presentations are important skills and ones students will definitely need in their careers. The goals of this course are to improve the students' presentation and public speaking skills, so that they are confident in making presentations and communicating in a variety of situations in the future.
